

College of Letters and Science

General Education Program: Special Subject Areas Objectives

Ethnicity Requirement

Objective: To learn to identify and understand the philosophical, intellectual, historical, and/or cultural experiences of historically oppressed and excluded racial minorities in the United States: Native Americans, African American, Chicanos/Latinos, Asian Americans, Pacific Islander Americans, and Multiracial Americans or a course that provides a comparative and integrative context for understanding the experiences of oppressed and excluded racial groups in the United States.

World Cultures Requirement

Objective: To learn to identify, understand, and appreciate the history, thought, and practices of one or more culture outside of the European tradition.

European Traditions Requirement

Objective: To learn to analyze early and /or modern European cultures and their significance in world affairs.

Quantitative Relationships Requirement

Objective: To develop and apply the basic quantitative methods to relevant questions or areas of study.

Writing Requirement

Objective: To study and practice with writing, reading, and critical analysis within specific disciplines.